Using Green Infrastructure in Designing New Developments

Featuring Civil Engineer/Hydrologist Thomas H. Price P.E. of the Conservation Design Forum.

Tom will talk about introducing Green Infrastructure design into newly developing areas with stormwater management practices and other sustainable development features.

Tom has been involved in over 20 years of projects throughout the Midwest from designing permeable pavements in streetscapes, to introducing green design to master plans for developing communities. His specialty is integrating stormwater management and retention systems into overall development plans.

WE hope you will join us for this informative event!!
